March 6-10 Classified School Employees Week

As we look to next week, to recognize our Classified Employees, it is important to remember how important everyone is to the success of our schools. While some positions may be more visible to the public, we all know that it is a team approach that achieves student success.

This year's theme is: "Classified school employees have the TRUST of students, parents, citizens, and staff." When parents send their children to school each day, they assume that the health, safety, and needs of their child will be taken care of. Those important tasks are taken care of by classified. Whether it is transporting a student, providing nutritious meals, or insuring a caring, safe, and healthy learning environment, classified school employees have the TRUST of students, parents, citizens, and staff to take care of each student every day as if that student was their own child.

Superintendent Search

The first interviews for superintendent will be held this coming Saturday and Monday. Due to scheduling conflicts, not all candidates will be able to tour schools when students and staff are present, but if you see a new face being shown around the district remember to smile and offer a warm greeting. Interviews are a two way street and we want to make our home as inviting as possible. Following initial interviews, the Board will decide on a second round of interviews, possible visits to home districts, or interviewing additional candidates. They could also decide they have the right person and offer him or her a contract. The Board's goal is to complete this process by the April board meeting.

Bangor Book Bargain

We still have a number of library books at Bangor Elementary that are in good condition. These books are duplicated at our other sites or are not current editions. We have contacted private and public schools, Head Start and preschools and they have selected books for their programs. We do not want any books left and possibly destroyed, so we are opening up the library for any staff or patron in the community who would like some free books. The free book give away will be March 8, 2006 from 4-6 PM at the Bangor School. The first 10 books are free and if you want more, we ask that you make a free will donation to our Booster Club. Bring friends and neighbors and take away treasures for your children, grandchildren, and neighbors. See you on the 8th.
